Electric Blues Guitar Lesson that you can play by yourself – Staying in the key of a song – EP299

In this week's guitar lesson, you'll learn how to play a Chicago blues style lead by yourself (no accompaniment is required). Instead of focusing on "playing the chord changes" like we did in last week's lesson (EP298), you'll be playing in the key of the song, only focusing on the pentatonic scales.

Learn how to play the chord changes over a blues composition – No accompaniment required – EP298

In this week's guitar lesson, you'll learn how to play a blues lead that doesn't require any rhythm or accompaniment because you'll be "playing the chord changes". This is a technique in which you outline the notes in the chords with your lead, resulting in a more sophisticated sounding solo. This is perfect for those [...]
